About the Seminar

The concepts of both Quality Assurance and Quality Development are of vital importance in Pharmaceutical industries. Without assurance that the medicines are relevant to priority health needs and that they meet acceptable standards of quality, safety and efficacy, any health service is evidently compromised. The challenge is, therefore, to develop quality systems, compatible with various principles, that not only cover formal quality items, but also ensure good scientific and technical performance. An implementation process focused on real quality improvement is the best way to achieve this objective, culminating in formal recognition of the quality system by third-party assessment. The seminar intends to bring together Academicians, Industrialists, Research Scholars on a common platform in order to bring forth the wide range of knowledge of quality assurance in all areas that impact drug quality.

The distinguished speakers from various domains will share their rich experience and best practices in the field of research.
